Greetings,

A relatively short time ago, consumers could find just about any product they wanted made in America. In fact, for many products it was difficult to find options not made in America. We all know the basic story of how that got whittled away as our leaders allowed Japanese electronics, Mexican manufactured cars, and Chinese plastic junk to flood almost every retailer in the land. Add to that the hard leftwing turn of many American-based companies, and the list of viable options in some industries isn't terribly long.

This story could be told for thousands of different products, but we've noticed it especially in the realm of appliances. As a result, there's no perfect option out there. But we shouldn't let the perfect be the enemy of the good. We'd love to only support American companies that promote traditional values, love our nation, and are invested in their local communities. However, sometimes we're just thankful to find an American company at all that can fill the void. So the next time you need a dishwasher, dryer, or the like, read below to find out what your best option is in an imperfect world.

The Better Alternative

Effectively every major appliance manufacturer has some production outside of America. Also, pretty much all of them feature leftwing propaganda of some sort or another in their marketing or investor materials. But of all the options, we've found that there is one major company that is clearly less woke than the alternatives and makes a very solid 80% of all of their appliances in the U.S.A.: Whirlpool.

When it comes to finding a refrigerator, range, dishwasher, dryer, and more, Whirlpool is clearly better than brands with much more aggressive leftwing promotional materials like GE or foreign companies with little to no American manufacturing like LG or Bosch.

Business Spotlight

As with most industries, smaller, more niche producers frequently provide the best option for truly American-made products created by people aligned with our values. In the appliance world, the cost of the items and scale of production necessary to make a profit effectively box out smaller players. But there are some specialty brands that fit the bill. One of our personal favorites is SteakAger. Yes, the name is completely correct. You can age prime-quality beef right at home in their incredible temperature and moisture-controlled contraption. If you're a carnivore, this might just save you a pretty penny in steakhouse bills without sacrificing on quality.

The Bigger Picture

Tom Klingenstein penned a great piece at the American Mind on how Trump's leadership virtues—not just his policies—are his biggest assets and exactly what Republicans need to embody:

“Trump was born for the current American crisis: the life and death struggle against the totalitarian enemy I call “woke communism.” The ‘woke comms’ have seized every political, cultural, and economic center of power in the country from where they ruthlessly push their agenda. That agenda rests on the conviction that America is thoroughly bad (systemically racist) and must be destroyed. If there is one thing that patriotic Americans know about Trump it is that he, like them, is unequivocally pro-American and willing to fight to defend the American way of life.”

Being a fighter isn't some unnecessary add-on to a party platform. In our times it is the singular most important quality a leader can have. Without that fighting spirit, good ideas will be crushed. With it, we have a chance to win.
